AQUINAS COLLEGE

Grand Rapids, Michigan

Of laughter, love, overwork, underwork,
Happiness, and Not-so- happiness:

Reflections.

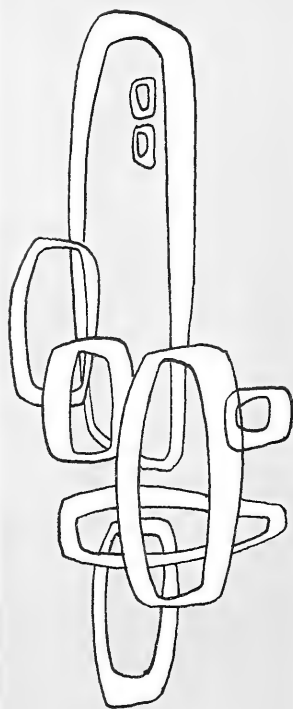

All making up the Great Mandella –
The Wheel of Life –
That we all have a part in –
That we all leave a mark on.

These shades of so many things
Are different colors –
If you choose to look at the world
As a colorful place –

But, however way you see life –
With shades of Madness, Irony,
Sunshine, or Perpetuity,

It's only here now.
And the best thing to do
Is simply live in the Kaleidoscope –
and
SMILE!

ADMINISTRATION- FACULTY

The Carvers of Human Destiny smiling on –
Or if not smiling, at least reacting to
The surrounding possibilities.

ORGANIZATIONS

The first taste of the Great Mandella –
The organization of the civilized world –
The precision of Life at it's important

J.M.S.

John Long, a senior and the Commission's first Chairman, has done a tremendous job establishing the Student Commission as the most important campus organization.

STUDENT COMMISSION

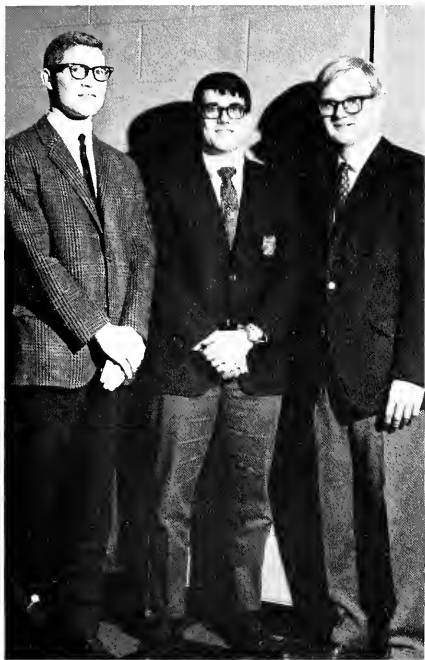

The product of a constitution written last year, the Student Commission's primary objective is to organize and set up a student government in such a way as to promote understanding and co-operation between the faculty and students. The second objective of the Commission is to co-ordinate all social and cultural activities.

There are twelve Commission offices with Miss Gertrude M. Horgan, Mr. John O'Connor, Dr. Rodger Remington, and Sister Anne Keating, O.P., as advisors. The Chairman's duty is to oversee all of the Commission's activities. The business aspects of the Commission are handled by the Financial, Secretarial, and Judicial Commissioners. The Educational Commissioner is concerned with the role of the College in society. The Inter-Collegiate Commissioner works to affiliate Aquinas with the neighboring colleges in order to sponsor such events as the Simon and Garfunkle concert. The Social Commissioner organizes all major social events, particularly Gala Weekend and Homecoming. The Student Assistance Commissioner works closely with the student body in order to get support for campus affairs. It is the job of the Publicity Commissioner to advertise all upcoming social and cultural attractions. The Civic Program Commissioner works to involve Aquinas in the activities of the city. Finally, the Historian collects and files all of Aquinas' publicized events in order to formulate a scrapbook display of the year's work.

The Inter-Collegiate, Financial, and Educational Commissioners are Seniors Ted Williams, Mike Shanese, and John Bagladi.

The Publicity, Secretarial, and Student Assistance Commissioners are Sophomores Jeff Lyon, Anne Leddy, and Pat Hennessey.

The Historian and Civic Program Commissioner are Freshmen Frank Hughes and Gail Wingard.

The Judiciary, Social and Cultural Commissioners are Juniors Jerry Urban, Lorraine Denby, and Ford Turrell.

The Wege Center Program Board initiates all activities for Wege Center and also helps coordinate student plans. One of their biggest jobs is preparing and setting up for the annual Klondike Derby, a sled race which involves participants representing the various clubs and organi-

Assisting Student Commissioner, Jerry Urban, with the judicial aspects of student government is the Student Judiciary Board. Members of the Board pictured are Linda Alameda, Peter Pijnappels, Roberta Worth, Jerry Urban and Nancy Petroski.

Three student organizations, representing all the students, have been quite active on campus this year. The Men's Residence Council has worked with the Women's Residence Council to provide interesting programs for on-campus students and also to act as a liason in dealing with the administration. Those students who do not live on campus have long felt the need for an organization to further their interests. The Com-muter Students Association seems to have filled this need. These three organizations, then, serve as the voice for all students.

WRC, MRC,

AND

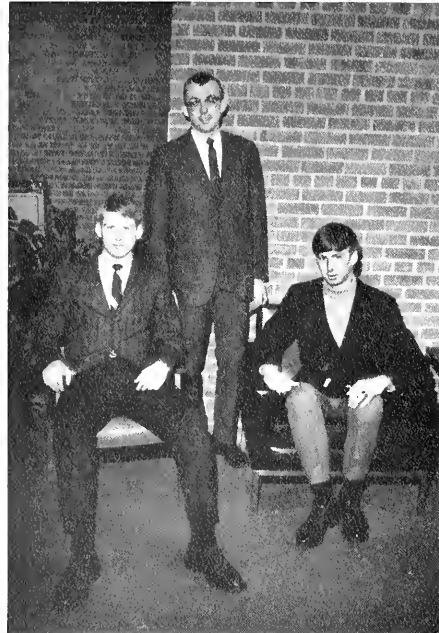

COMMUTER STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

In order to draw the commuter students into a more complete participation in the total campus life and at the same time to minimize the division in the student body as much as possible, the Student Commuters Association was formed. Near the end of the first semester a group of interested students consisting of Peter Vaccaro, Sue Wood, Gail Wingard, and Katie Kelly, under the leadership of Dorothy Dean, prepared a constitution for the organization. The main objectives of the association incorporated into the approved constitution are to promote a sense of unity and friendship among all students at Aquinas and to represent and promote the interests of the commuter students. Various ideas have been suggested and implemented to achieve the former. Representing five hundred students, the association has a tremendous potential for action. This is the sort of organization that depends on its members to generate new ideas.

The officers of the Student Commuters Association are Paul Rutowski, Treasurer; Kathleen Kelly, communications and publicity coordinator; Gail Wingard, Membership coordinator; Dorothy Dean, Social Activities coordinator; and Herman Boruta, chairman. Not pictured is Pat Vincent, Secretary.

The Men's Residence Council represents the men students living in St. Joseph the Worker Hall. They sponsor such activities as dorm dances, group discussions, and W. C. Fields' films. The officers of the council pictured here are Mike O'Toole, vice president; Dick Cowdrey, president; and Tom Northorst, secretary. Missing from the picture is Eugene Laporte, treasurer.

The Women's Residence Council represents the women students living in Regina Hall and other College houses. An annual fee is collected to aid in sponsoring such activities as toboggan parties and a lecture series. The Council often goes to the administration in order to furnish the dorm with such luxuries as sewing and vending machines. The members of the Women's Residence Council pictured are: (left to right, bottom row) Dorothy DeLong, Vice President; Sue Raynes, Nancy Caldwell, President; Cathy Capano, Secretary; (second row) Sue Raynes, Mary Doman, Kathy Deal, Mary Cronin, Gerri Bek, Theresa Grywalski, Laura Lentz, and Paula Baer; (third row) Sharon Barret, Joan Blake, Mrs. Pearce, Sandy Schatzman, Lynn Gartner, Angie Austin, Cathy Mueller, Jeanne Lound and Cathy McGuigan; (back row) Alice Modrzynski, Mary Nowakowski, Mrs. Sonke, Mary Ann Gable, Jane Neyer, Chris Dziachan, Joan Sebulski, Nancy DeLisle, and Connie Becker.

Lambda Iota Tau, the Beta chapter of the National Literary Honor Society, sponsors monthly discussions, affording students an opportunity to analyze and share their ideas on literary work under an informal atmosphere. At this meeting are Michael Rosinski; Paul McCarthy, President;

Jim McDonald; Kathy Sliwinski, Secretary; and Mary Ann Sweeney. In order to join Lambda, members must be a Junior or a Senior majoring or minoring in English or a foreign language, must maintain a high scholastic average, and must present an initiation paper on a literary topic.

HONOR SOCIETIES

Phi Alpha Theta, the Theta-Rho chapter of the National Honor Society, denotes the Greek words for "love", "man", and "God", indicating the view from which this organization observes history. Gathered around their moderator, Sister Marie, O.P., are officers Jim Schaffer, treasurer; Brian Williams, vice president; Jim Eickholt, president; Sandra Schluter, historian; and Marybeth Sakowski, secretary.

Paul Marietti (second from right) speaks to initiatees Sue Flannery, Kathy Sliwinski, Sharon Wrocklage, Richard Cowdrey, and Tom Garikes. Two initiatees not pictured are Paul Rutowski and Dennis Leiber. To be eligible, students must have taken at least twelve hours of history in which superior grades were maintained, must rank within the top thirty-five percent of the class, and have a general academic average of at least "B".

Not all biology students are worked to the bone like Roscoe (fourth from the left) but you can usually find some pretty busy members of the Biology Club. Others in the picture are: (back row) Fred Vincent, Frank Hunnes, Scott Jamie-

SCIENCE-AFFILIATED CLUBS

Physics Club officers are Joe Pulwaski, president; Christine Rebman, secretary; and Jim Rinkevich, vice president. Missing from the picture is Bill Schmiedicke, treasurer.

Beta, Beta, Beta, a national biology honor society, has been quite active on campus this year. To be eligible for membership in this society, a student must have completed twelve hours of biology, have a 3.0 average in biology, and an overall average of 2.5. This year the society has undertaken various projects. The main project has been an attempt to classify all of the trees on campus according to species.

Standing next to an African man-eating plant in the science building is Dr. Bouwman with Tri Beta officers Elena Morfin, Dick Cowdrey, and Pat Commenator.

AND ORGANIZATIONS

Instruments and music sheets are the symbols of the Music Club. Members of the club practice hard to achieve perfection but they enjoy every minute of it. Members pictured here are (left to

The Spanish Club emphasizes a better understanding of the language and culture of Spanish-speaking nations. The officers of the club are George Lee and Kathy Bleyaert, co-presidents, and Al Olivarez, treasurer.

Moderator Richard Blake and President Don Duczowski guide the International Relations Club in promoting a better understanding of world affairs through discussions, speakers, and travel. Aides in planning the club's activities are the other officers Marybeth Sakowski, vice president; Maureen Harley, secretary; and Don Atkins, treasurer.

LANGUAGE CLUBS

The Aquinas Classical Society is a newly organized group designed to promote the appreciation and study of ancient Greece and Rome by discussing their outstanding characters, literature, music philosophy, and art. Admiring one of the statues of this era, The Discus Thrower, are moderator, Sister Wanda, O.P.; pro-consul, Marybeth Sakowski; consul, Pete Vaccaro; quaestor, Norm Rominski; scribe, Sue Wood; and moderator, Sister Aquin, O.P.

Other members of the Aquinas Classical Society are Father Vainavicz, Helen Bossert, Lillian Zemla, Joe Amley, Kathy Walsh, Grady Baas, Maureen Harley, and Ayn McCauley.

Standing before the German Club display outside the Reference Library are some members of the club: Mike Polzin, Bob Valenta, Kay Feinauer, Alane Alec, and Joe Greiner. The German Club's activities this year have centered around sponsoring German films, Old Heidelberg, and a trip to Frankenmuth. The Club's moderator is Dr. Robert H. Hieber.

Sports activity is quite evident at Aquinas and the members of the Varsity Club work to keep interest in the subject high. Although the academic side of college is of prime importance, nevertheless, sports enthusiasm is important for a well-rounded curriculum.

The future leaders of the financial world comprise the membership of the Business Club at Aquinas College. The officers pictured here are Robert Bufford, secretary; Pat Jones, treasurer; and Charlie Keller, vice president. Missing from the picture is Larry Steinborn, president.

Staff members Donna Clark, Sandra Schlueter (Faculty and Graduates editor), Pat Jones, and Rose Hornick (Activities editor) worked to give their sections that "new look."

'68 THOMIST STAFF

STRIVES FOR NEW LOOK

Seeking a "new look" for the '68 THOMIST was editor Paul Haviland's main objective. Closely assisting him were associate editor, Jessica Starr, and photography co-ordinator, Jane Liebst.

Getting pictures and information on the various clubs on campus was the job of the Organizations Staff. Co-editors of this section were Peggy Owen (middle) and Dave Sciamanna (far right). Other staff members are Karen Chabie, Dorothy Dean, and Melanie Reed.

Designing the THOMIST's cover and providing all of the book's artwork was the responsibility of the staff artist, Ed Manning.

THE HERALD IS THE VOICE

The Herald's office and staff are small in comparison with the task they perform. First and foremost, the staff members keep their ears and eyes open for any bit of campus news. After having recorded the very best, the staff begins to supplement the paper with original articles or commentaries on past, present, and future programs or significant events. From here on, the job is placed in the hands of the editor, managers, and the moderator. The editor edits the articles with the help of the moderator. One of the duties of the assistant is to organize the letters from various members of the student body and prepare responses along with the editor. The business manager must complete the pages of the Herald with interesting advertisements.

Tom Schafer, editor of the school newspaper, finds that his second home has become the HERALD office. His job is time-consuming and often hectic but, nevertheless, exciting and satisfying.

OF THE STUDENTS

ORBIT

Many students on campus are gifted with creative ability that too often goes unrecognized. The Orbit, the college's literary magazine, offers the student an opportunity to have his work published. The staff members and advisor choose a variety of artistic work that interests the student body and provides others with hours of enjoyable reading.

Moderator Sister Marybride Ryan, O.P., discusses this year's publication with editor Jim McDonald and associate editor Marian Smith.

The staff members responsible for ORBIT are Michele Erdelyi, art; Peter Vaccaro, associate

LETTER

T.G.I.F. Friday's the day Letter generally makes its appearance on Aquinas windowsills and cafeteria tables. Every student looks forward to reading the latest edition of the Letter, a new addition to the campus publications. It is a four page paper, always printed in living color. It serves as a gossip sheet, sports commentary, and advertisement for up-coming activities. All in all, the Letter is a fascinating "little paper" filled with "big stuff."

Claude Inch (left) is the editor of the LETTER. On the right is Ed Manning, the man behind "TOMMIE A. Q."

The general officers of the Aquinas Volunteers are Fred Farrer, chairman; Diane Crockett, secretary; and Mike Polzin, assistant chairman.

The tendency of a small college to remain inside of itself is not evident at Aquinas. The Aquinas Volunteers act as an outstretched hand reaching into the community. They sponsor a Radio Marathon twice a year in order to finance their activities. Project Appalachia, Mexico, the Aquinats, and Operation Latin America all come under the general organization of the Aquinas Volunteers. Their activities are important in creating an atmosphere of giving which is an important part of each individual's education.

AQUINAS VOLUNTEERS GET

Pat Roseberry, chairman of the Aquinats, becomes actively involved in helping the aged.

Pictured (left to right) are Peggy Duva and Bob Theitels, co-chairmen, and Gwen Van Golf, secretary, of the Appalachia Project.

Mike Rosinski is the head chairman of Project Mexico, which is designed to aid the poor families in Mexico through teaching programs.

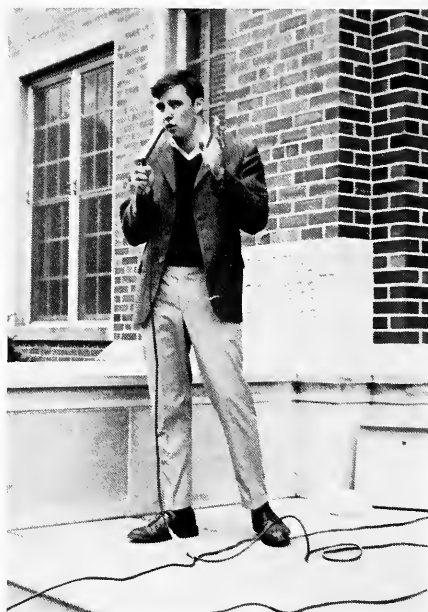

INVOLVED

These are a few of the students who went to Appalachia during the summer months, taking time out to aid the poverty-stricken Americans.

Chairman Fred Farrer directs Radio Marathon activity from the Administration Building steps.

Brian Williams advertises "cheap labor" to WXTO listeners.

"The Good Guys" provided musical accompaniment for those waiting for work assignments.

Students wait for the opportunity to participate in Radio Marathon activities and earn money for the Aquinas Volunteers' various projects.

Families like this receive Volunteer aid.

The new Y.C.S. officers are : (standing) President, George Lee; Vice President, Don Muscat; (seated) Secretary, Cathy Mueller; and Treasurer, Ginni Haas.

Service is one of the principle aims of the Young Christian Students. It is an organization composed of active cells, each one concentrating on a particular community project such as teaching catechism, providing staged activities for under-privileged children, devoting some time to teaching the handicapped or mentally retarded, or spending an evening with disturbed teens.

Another important aspect of YCS is its film committee. The presentations are all meaningful films. Discussions following the films help the viewers gain new insights into life.

The main objective of YCS remains the desire to make each member a better and stronger Christian.

The out-going officers are Jeanne Lound Secretary; Chris Shea, President; Kay McNeely, Treasurer; and Carol Piggott, Vice President.

Y.C.S. consists of eight cells, operating in different spheres of social action: the Film Committee, the Liturgical Committee, The Confraternity of Christian Doctrine Cell, the Communications Cell, the Pitt Cell, St. John's Cell, St. Joe's Cell, and St. Isadore's Cell.

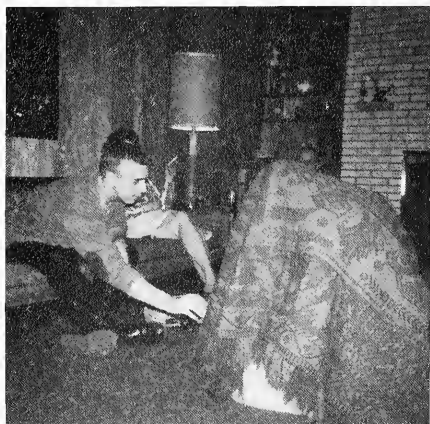

YOUNG CHRISTIAN STUDENTS

Checking the movie equipment are members of the Film Committee: Bev Davis, Bill Schmidt, Clem Mikowski, George Lee (chairman), and Rose Hornick.

Members of St. Joe's Cell, Cathy Mueller and Don Muscat, watch their new artists.

YCS members take time out to relax.

A picnic held at the beginning of the year introduced new members into the organization.

Gala Weekend heads the list of major social events at Aquinas during the fall semester. The weekend began with the Inaugural Ball on Friday night where the King and Queen were crowned. Entertainment Saturday night was provided by Spanky and Our Gang.

Sunday, the traditional carnival was climaxed by the grand finale, a dance and skit done in roaring twenties motif, all neatly concealed by easy speaking Friendly Floyd's funeral parlor.

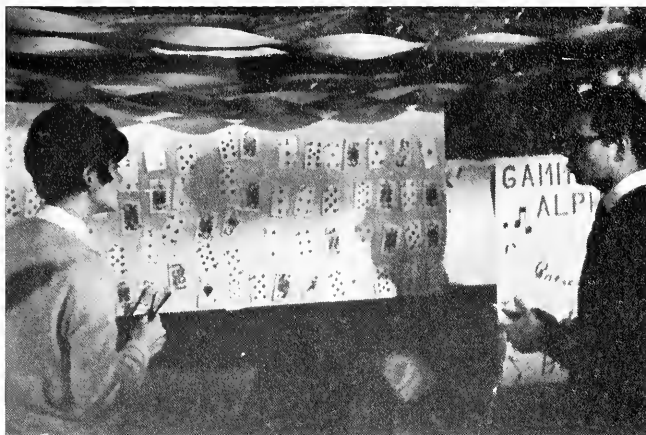

Anne Leddy, chilled to the bone, has visions of being warm and cozy again

Wünchen Sie ein Glas Bier? Students enjoyed the German atmosphere in spite of the absence of beer.

TO SUNDOWN

Friendly Floyd's was the hot spot Sunday night as G-men invaded Wege Center. Here, G-men questions innocent-looking Mr. McCaffrey.

For both students and faculty, added enrichment to college life is provided by the guest speakers that visit the campus. Doctor Tiwo Dosumu-Johnson, member of the Liberian Delegation to the United Nation's General Assembly, spoke on "Cultural Pluralism in Africa." Wege Center Auditorium was the spot for excitement the night William Stringfellow addressed the College. The topic was "White Supremacy and Black Power." An interesting question and answer period concluded the evening's program. "American Values in a Changing Society" was the subject of Doctor Ethel J. Alpenfels lecture. The noted Danforth lecturer and authority on anthropology spoke to an attentive audience. The following day the subject was "Anthropology: An Integrating Science of an Integrated World."

Noted theologian and spokesman at the Second Vatican Council, Father Schillebeeckx discussed "Secularity and Contemporary Theology." Students were able to express their awareness and interest in the new theology. Guest lecturers provide the College community with opportunities to gain valuable information on topics not discussed in the classrooms.

WISDOM

Fr. John Hart welcomed Fr. Schillebeeckx to the campus.

Dr. Ethel J. Alpenfels chatted with students and faculty after her lecture.

The steps to the Administration Building were laden with surprises after a visit from the Great Pumpkin.

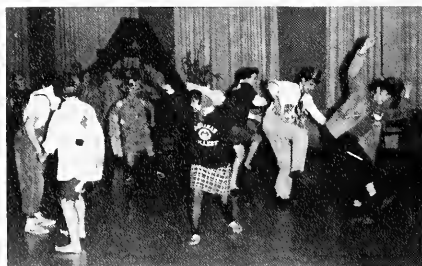

HALLOWEEN AND

Dances at Aquinas displayed the ingenuity and imagination of the planners. Themes ranged from holiday celebrations; such as Holloween and St. Patrick's Day dances, to a Protest dance, to informal snackbar dances.

Passage through a spook-house maze preceded entrance into the masquerade Halloween affair. Discovering who was who and judging costumes made the evening one that will long be remembered. The highlight of the evening was the contest to sing the best pumpkin carols.

Dog-Patch U.S.A. was the setting for Sadie Hawkins night. Marrying Sam was the most popular man of the evening as he joined many couples in unlawful wedlock. The most frequented spot, however, was a little, private corner known as the kissing booth. Ghosts and Daisy Maes have found dances to be the perfect places for relaxing from the books.

The ol' barn jumped as everyone hooted during a mountain jig.

"Please buy our cornflakes, new country cornflakes."

Folks from Dog-Patch extend their su'thern hospitality to all.

The stage is set. Weeks of rehearsal bring a professional performance to a grateful audience.

The Carriage House was the scene for the moving account of a spring day in a Welsh coast town. The Drama Department transformed Dylan Thomas' "Under Milkwood," a play for voices, into a visual as well as listening experience. Each of the seven students, Bill Schultz, James Milanowski, Dennis Lieber, James Chervenka, Jessica Starr, Roberta Zimmer, and Theresa Grywalski and an instructor, Mr. Herbert Martin, had several roles to play. The characterization was so complete that at no time did the attentive audience have difficulty distinguishing the characters. Due to the great response, the cast, directed by Sister Mary de Chantal Luke, was asked to give an extra performance. The company was invited to appear as the opening production at the New Edwin Booth Experimental Theatre. Rarely has an audience been treated to such a refreshing view of life.

Roberta Zimmer, Ford Turrell, and Bill Schultz rehearse for "Maid to Marry."

Peg Callahan, Theresa Grywalski, and Dennis Lieber realized the difficulties involved in learning "The Lesson."

TALENTS,

In February, the Theatre of the Absurd was introduced to Aquinas College through An Evening With Ionesco. The two one-act plays "The Lesson" and "A Maid to Marry," were received with enthusiastic support. Students explored the difficulties of communication, bourgeois civilization, the loss of real values, and the resulting degradation of life, as presented by Eugene Ionesco in his works. Under the direction of Mr. Gary Konow, new to the Drama Department, the actors excelled in their interpretation of the characters. An evening of contemporary drama at its finest was climaxed by a reception for players and audience.

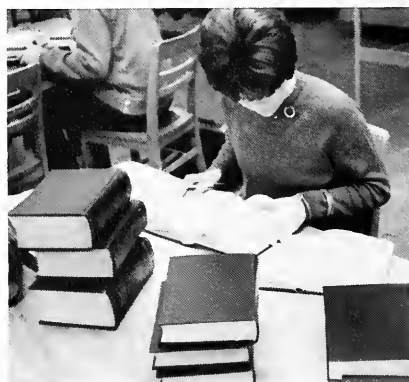

AND CREATE THEIR BEING.

Terry Bussey puts the finishing touches on her sculpture of Mr. Martin.

Would anyone care to dispute Jeanne Lound's ability as a speed reader?

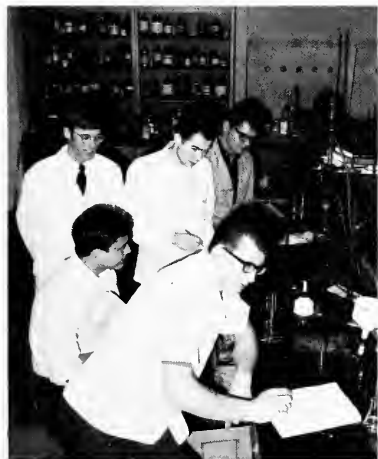

The all-college event, the annual term paper, requires hours of diligent work in the library.

The old maxim "Practice makes perfect" is put into practice by Sister.

Proving that "science is simple," Bob Humphrey and Fred Vincent observe the phenomena of nature in the 72 hour chick.

Mark Schelle adds the final stroke to his painting "Running Nude," displayed during the Festival of the Arts.

The direction which the civil rights activity has taken on campus seems to reflect the disturbing reality that the racial troubles in this country are rooted in the tranquil white suburbs and not in our riot-torn inner cities. A weekend conference, organized by Mary Baynai and Susan Mitzel was intended to attack this problem by providing Aquinas students with a comprehensive understanding of racial prejudice and its repercussions.

On April 4, 1968, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was assassinated in Memphis Tennessee. Although literally speaking his life was taken from him, in another real sense it was given up by him through his willingness to live as well as die for what he believed in. The Editor of this book, on behalf of the students and faculty of Aquinas College, wishes to pay highest respects to the memory of Dr. King and the Christian principles by which he lived.

WE GIVE OUR LIVES THROUGH OUR INVOLVEMENT

The extensive work and organization required in planning the weekend conference was evidenced in the movies and educational material provided as well as the speakers brought from Detroit, Grand Rapids and Chicago.

The problems which manifest themselves in the ghetto can be somewhat relieved by the social action of those from outside that ghetto society. These problems however are not themselves the critical issues, but actually manifestations of the critical issues: of the racism and discrimination which produced them. In this picture, Dorothy Panyrek, a member of the Young Christian Society's St. Joseph Cell is seen working with the victims of our society's injustice, the black children who in many cases still bear the burden of slavery.

"Black Ghetto", a movie depicting the Black man's response to the 1967 Grand Rapids - Detroit riots, was followed by a panel discussion in the Albertus Magnus Auditorium. A question-answer session after the movie established at least a limited rapport between the audience of well over 200 and the panel which included Dr. Daniel Lipke, Mrs. Florence Murphy, and a Black militant student from G. R. Junior College, Mervin Hill, Jr. Sponsors of the program, John MacDonald and Cathy McGuigan (pictured below) define their intentions, "It's an attempt to bring the race problem home to the White communities, where we feel the real problem lies, and further, to educate whites to look beyond the violence and see the hope and promise of a truly united America. We hope by these efforts to do our part to re-establish as a generally accepted fact, the idea that Americans are fundamentally a decent, humane people."

Academia, with all its exclusive pressures and demands, is not without reference to the outside world. As students in this academic society, it is sometimes easy to put aside thoughts and decisions on where each of us stand in regard to those problems which seem detached from us, such as white racism. The display which appears in this picture was not so easily avoided as it stood in the hall of the school's administration building as a reminder of the need for student involvement. The above picture shows Mary Serra Haviland and Dick Martin putting the finishing touches on the exhibit as it appeared later in the Eastbrook Mall.

Reigning over the weekend's festivities is queen, Linda Alameda.

Alumni, faculty, and students welcomed the gaiety of Homecoming, 1968. The activities began with a visit to the gambling casinos of Reno, Nevada. Glitter and gold, wheels a-spinning and money a-flying; the house was forced to close down after being cleaned out by the lucky gamblers. Saturday's basketball game with Oakland University ended in a triumph for the Tommies. The victorious spirit was carried over to the homecoming dance held at the Morton House. A theme of "Honey and Wine" set the mood for a romantic evening of music and dancing. Sunday night saw the close of a wonderful weekend with a return to the adventures of the years of World War I. As luck has it, the Red Baron himself is an alumnus of Aquinas. The Snoopy dance was highlighted by a skit in which the Red Baron paid a visit to his old alma mater. From gambling hall to "Honey and Wine" to World War I, homecoming weekend provided the setting for the happy reunion of old and new.

WE LIVE TO RESPOND

Jim Hooker discovers that you can't hide under a security blanket forever.

Forty Aquinas students, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Pumford, attended the Christian Seminar Weekend in October. They spent the weekend at Camp Pinewood on Echo Lake. Father Robert Carson conducted the weekend of discussion mixed with good times. The students roughed it in the cabins at the camp and took advantage of the lake for canoe trips. Hunting raccoons at night was a new experience for most. The beautiful fall setting and good weather was perfect for the many talks and shared experiences. The Church in the modern world was the main topic discussed by the students. Contemporary problems, especially in relation to the students themselves, were of primary importance. A second seminar weekend was held during the spring. Father John Egan directed the discussions to meaningful and significant areas which concern the modern Christian today. The seminars proved to be of immeasurable value in the total college experience as weekends of serious thought, relaxed social activity, and intensified communication.

The seminar offered unlimited opportunities for dialogue.

The Five of Spades captures the attention of Kathy Mc Cullagh.

Impossible things really can happen when you jump through the magic keyhole. The Sophomore class discovered this when they sponsored the "Alice in Wonderland," Mademoiselle Dance. Alice and her traveling troupe; the Mad Hatter, Chesire Cat, and green Caterpillar, enchanted Wege Ballroom and made it a wonderland. A mad tea party was held during the evening in celebration of a "very merry unbirthday." The Mad Hatter kept the secret of Mr. Irresistible hidden within his top hat until the magical hour of eleven when Mr. Irresistible was presented to the Queen of Heart's court. The only celebrity who did not appear was the white rabbit, but it seems as though he is always late for very important dates...and this was a very important date.

The Wyde Syde Band provided the music for the fairyland evening.

The anxious finalists watch Eileen O'Connor bring the Mad Hatter's top hat containing the name of Mr. Irresistible.

FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

Ford Turrell and Roberta Zimmer go through a last minute rehearsal of their readings.

Hard work goes into the transformation of cluttered studios into fine art galleries.

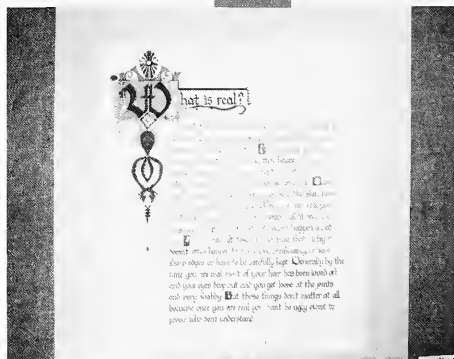

The annual Festival of the Arts is a week of shows and presentations from the various fine arts departments of the College. The music department's participation consists of both piano and organ recitals highlighted by vocal solos. The drama department presents readings by the students of the oral interpretation class. Scenes from such varied works as "Antigone" and "Virginia Woolf" are enacted by acting class members. Another area of the drama department is represented by the modern dance class.

The main event of the Festival of the Arts is the works exhibited by the art department students. The art studio displays the winning pieces in the various fields of basic and figure drawing, painting, sculpture, and design. All of the pieces are student works completed during the year by art majors and minors. Through the Festival of the Arts, fine arts students are able to publicly display their works.

Marilyn Martin won the "best piece of the show" award for her interpretation in oil, "Earth Marks."

For her manuscript Peg Duva lettered out an excerpt from "The Velveteen Rabbit."

Nate Horowitz's metal sculpture "Ralph" was one of the show's most outstanding pieces.

Ed Manning's sculpture of Patti Sell's head was one of those selected for an art award.

The artists explored many types of expression from realism to abstraction.

Smile –

Live in the Kaleidoscope –

Look at Life thru your Shades –

Spin the Wheel of Life –

Get the most out of the “Wonderful World of Color” –

Madness –

Irony –

Sunshine –

Perpetuity –

“Now” is the thing to do –

The Happiness,

And Not-so-happiness,

Aren't just

Reflections –

They're

Reality!
